

Table with multiple columns containing financial data, company names, and dates. The table is organized into several vertical sections, likely representing different categories of financial information or company groups. Each row contains detailed entries including codes, names, and numerical values.