

(上接C9版)

Table with multiple columns containing fund names, codes, dates, and other financial details. The table is organized into several vertical sections, each starting with a header row. The data includes various types of funds such as equity funds, bond funds, and money market funds, along with their respective managers and performance metrics.