

Table with multiple columns containing financial data, company names, and codes. The table is organized into several vertical sections, likely representing different categories of disclosures or company groups. Each row contains a numerical identifier, a company name, and various financial figures.