

Table with multiple columns containing financial data, company names, and dates. The table is organized into several vertical sections, likely representing different categories of financial information or company listings. Each row contains a series of data points, including numerical values and text descriptions.