

Table with multiple columns containing financial data, company names, and product codes. The table is organized into several vertical sections, likely representing different categories of financial products or companies. Each row contains detailed information such as codes, names, and numerical values.