

Table with multiple columns containing financial data, company names, and dates. The table is organized into several vertical sections, likely representing different categories of disclosures or company groups. Each row contains detailed information including codes, names, and numerical values.