

(上接C14版)

Table with multiple columns containing company names, codes, and financial data. The table is organized into several vertical sections, likely representing different categories of companies or funds. Each row contains a small number of data points, including what appears to be a company name, a code, and several numerical values.