

Table with multiple columns containing financial data, company names, and numerical values. The table is organized into several vertical sections, likely representing different categories of companies or financial metrics. The text is dense and repetitive, typical of a financial disclosure document.