

Table with multiple columns containing company names, addresses, and financial data. The table is organized into several vertical sections, likely representing different regions or categories of companies. Each row contains detailed information about a specific company, including its name, registered address, and various financial metrics.